SUMMER SEASONAL GUIDE

2025

Top Menu Picks

The Summer Solstice arrives on June 21st and the heat of summer hastens the harvest of local beans, berries, corn, figs, melons, new crop potatoes, and summer squash.

While we always hope for perfect weather conditions, Mother Nature has the final say. This year, heavy winter rains helped cover crops grow tall this spring, enriching the soil with abundant nitrogen to support faster, healthier plant growth. Mild spring rains led farms to plant in early March this year, pushing crops ahead into early summer.

California cherries will make a brief appearance before ending early this year, as last summer's extreme heat weakened the trees and reduced this year's crop. Peach, nectarine, and plum crops are expected to have a bumper harvest thanks to ideal bloom weather from Fresno through the Sierra foothills.

Summer Seasonal Items

BEANS

Commencing in late spring/early summer, local fields produce crunchy, velvety options in various colors, shapes, and sizes. Some of these varieties include French, Purple, Romanos, and Blue Lakes. Toward the end of summer, shelling beans begin with Cranberry, then Cannelini, and later with the likes of Flageolet.

BERRIES

Blueberries start as a half pint pack and shift to full pints as the season progresses and the crop fleshes out. Look for local varietal blackberries and raspberries. Strawberries move to the smaller, more flavorful varieties. Gooseberries make their brief appearance, mostly coming from Oregon.

CITRUS

Summer is not a great time of year for citrus. There are four primary growing districts in California that we move between during summer, shopping for the best quality and value. You will see this crop-in-transition impact on pricing, as with every out of season crop. Lemons suffer the most at this time, and Meyer Lemons fade away. What little available is often less than prime, with erratic in size and often soft. We will source lemons from Chile for the summer until the fall. Limes will the most reliable citrus option, with great taste and full of juice.

FIGS

The major fig season begins in mid-summer and runs as late as November for certain varieties. Frost or heavy rains will affect the quality and availability of figs in the fall. Prior to the California crop starting, we occasionally source figs from Arizona. An Arizona picking sometimes covers the local fig gap in mid-summer. Please note: Black Mission Figs have two harvests: one small crop in late spring, then a larger crop in late summer through early fall, gapping in between.

MUSHROOMS

Morels from the Pacific Northwest often run through summer. Other Summer Mushrooms include Chanterelles, Hen of the Woods, Lobster, and some Porcini. Cultivated Mushrooms can be impacted by excessive heat and supplies may be interrupted as growers adapt to higher temperatures.

MELONS

Melons can start as early as May from the desert, but these are rarely full of sugar. The best flavor and variety comes by mid-June. Local melon season can run into October depending on warm weather. Generally, the best of the season is in June until early September.

STONE FRUIT

The season for our local cherries is fairly short and will continue with fruit from Oregon and Washington. Bings typically start in late May, followed by Rainiers in June. During the summer months, California-grown apricots, nectarines, peaches, plums, and pluots get better as the season progresses.

TOMATOES

Prime local tomato season is early-mid July through late September. Every year sees new varietals and different farmers trying their hand at heirlooms. We sell both mixed flats and dedicated single varietal packs. The Toy Box Cherry Tomato pack is a perennial favorite as you will find the most satisfying flavor from the smaller fruit. We also have a Caprese mix available, which is a mid-size heirloom mix.
